Carl Kessler

Winter in the Klosters Valley, Graubunden, Switzerland

Peaks & Glaciers 2021 cat p.28

Kessler was a specialist watercolourist of mountain scenery and worked throughout the Tyrol and the Engadine. Although his pictures seem deceptively simple and softly executed, the wide expanses of snow are formed of many subtle washes, graded to convey the distribution of light on the blanketed meadows and slopes. Kessler favoured clear, cold days and his skies are often dappled with yellow ochre clouds. This wintry watercolour depicts the view along the valley due east from the Monbiel hamlet in Klosters; from right to left are the peaks of the Wisshorn and Canardhorn.
